Helen Pomphrey

Helen Pomphrey is a mixed media landscape artist working primarily in oil, but also in collage, textural layering and photo transfer techniques. Her artwork is rooted in Scottish colourist traditions, reconfiguring compositional patterns and vibrant colour palettes. Pomphrey's artwork establishes buildings as tangible representations of history. She captures an array of structures, buildings or otherwise, and positions them so that they form a narrative with their surroundings. Her compositional talent relays past and present histories in conjunction with one another, evoking both the permanency of human creation and inevitable change over time.
